

Art History Track Senior Capstone Research Project UNCP Art Department

The Senior Capstone Research Project is intended to be the capstone event of students in the Art History track at UNCP. It is an opportunity to celebrate their achievements as art history students by presenting their most recent work in a public setting. In their last semester, students are required to complete an independent research project, consisting of 15-20 double-spaced pages, and present it in a 20-minute public conference-style digital presentation. Following the public presentation, the student will undergo a critique of their paper and presentation by a panel of three faculty, including their advisor. Completing both the written project and the presentation is a requirement for graduation.

The subject of the research project, which can take a form of a research paper or a research paper with a visual component, must be approved by your advisor, an art history faculty, at the beginning of the semester prior to the semester in which the student is planning to graduate. The general subject of the research project needs to derive from the student's art history coursework.
