

Native American dance, food and fun

By Tony Lewis
Staff Writer

The UC Annex came alive on Oct. 29 with the sights and sounds of Native American drumming, singing and dancing at the Native American Student Organization's (NASO) Annual Fall Powwow.

The powwow kicked off with the Grand Entry featuring Head Man Dancer Patrick Green and Head Lady Dancer Heather Jones. Southern Sun drummers were the Host Drum for the event.

In addition to the performances, the powwow featured Native American arts and crafts, food, fellowship and fun.

For more information about NASO, including future events, please contact Becky Goins at 910-521-6282 or visit www.uncp.edu/nativemuseum/naso.

Photo by Tony Lewis

Native American performers dance to native drums and music during the Native American Student Organization's Annual Powwow Oct. 29.

Photo by Tony Lewis

The Native American Student Organization hold their annual Fall Powwow Oct. 29 in the University Center Annex. The powwow featured Native American singing, dancing and drumming as well as crafts, food and fellowship.